

A professional archaeologist, Dominic Andrews has specialised in reconstruction pictures and models since 2001. Drawing upon his wide-ranging knowledge and practical experiences, he seeks to create the most lifelike reconstructions possible, through exhaustive research and careful analysis. His work covers all period of British history and prehistory and he has clients across the UK. He has worked in several areas of archaeology, including excavation and small finds, and is currently based in York.