

Terry Slater is Reader in Historical Geography in the University of Birmingham and an Honorary Lay Canon of Birmingham Cathedral. He is author of popular books such as A History of Warwickshire (1997) and Edgbaston, A History (2002); wrote a history of the Diocese of Birmingham (2005), and has edited academic volumes on The Built Form of Western Cities (1990), The Church in the Medieval Town (1998), Towns in Decline AD 100-1600 (2000) and A County of Small Towns (2008). He has published many articles on medieval towns using the evidence of town-plan analysis.